

Bikers with a story

Bad Place to Pee from Jan.

“One day I go dee dai' (pee) behind my house.

This is the same place I go all the time. I go in back behind my house because I like to watch all the many lights on the boats when they go down the river behind my house. I always go dee dai early in the morning before I go to market when it's still dark outside. When I pee, it splash on my leg. I wonder what the hell. I look down, and choi 'oi, I'm deeeee dai' on a man's head. He lay down in my yard. I look for long time. ...I wait for him to move. Then I see too much blood and too many dead people next to him. I try to run, but I'm 'fused for which way to go. First, I run wrong way. I don't know my head from my tail. Finally, I run to my house, but the way I go, I fall down too many times, right on top of many dead people. I feel like I run for an hour before I get to my house.”

Her face revealed a look of panic like it had just happened as she continued;

“The night before, ARVN (Army of the Republic of Vietnam) and VC (Viet Cong) have big fight by my house. They shoot ten VC. They take all the dead body and put them up right behind my house. Man, I tell you, I'm sooo scared. I never go in my backyard again. When I have to go to the bathroom I go in bucket and I tell my dad to throw out for me. I tell him he do, or I'm never go to market. 'Sheet', I tell my father and he do. But when I dream today, I see VC Cong Ma chase me. I run so hard, but they catch me and try to wipe dee dai on my face!”

Hai became angrier as she told the dream she had the back of the Harley. She was not emotional, but mad, she didn't like the VC or the ARVN's. The incident at her peeing spot and a few other things that had happened to her while she was growing up in Vietnam left her with a mean streak at just the mention of days when she was young.

To the captured group of listeners the story sounded like a movie they hadn't seen yet. To me it sounded like a movie I'd seen before, and didn't want to see again.

What's on your Vest

Ever wonder about the pins and patches on a Bikers vest? They can tell you a lot about the person wearing it.

The worst of their worlds can be represented in a patch that might say, 'Bronze Star, Hue '68 RVN.' Make you wonder? The best of times might look like, 'Sturgis '99' in a pin or on a patch. The organizations they align themselves with, the places they have been, and the way they feel about the world can all be read from the vest.

#1> You're putting down the road of life on your favorite scooter where you come to a fork in the road. One road leads to death and destruction, the other to prosperity and happiness. At this fork are two bikers, they both look like your typical "biker scum". The difference is that one of them is a habitual liar who cannot utter a word of truth; the other is honest to a fault and cannot tell a lie. You can only ask one question of either of them. You have a 50/50 chance that you will be successful, but that's to risky. So what is the one question you can ask either of them so you can be 100% certain you are choosing the right road? <<<

#2> What is the only thing bikers see everyday that God has never seen? <<<

Run For The Wall XXI

The Run For The Wall is a mission that draws many different people for many different reasons. Some come to say thanks to God for letting them live, they come to heal. Some come to talk to an old friend they won't see until life's journey is over. The Vietnam War is long over for our Government, but those that had a personal stake remember. There is little acknowledgement today of the fact that there are still 1763 men and women considered MIA & POW's from the Vietnam era. The mission to the "WALL" is to bring awareness of that fact

For all riders, this emotional trip will be a time for meeting new people & enjoying the freedom of this great land. Along the way, in towns large and small, there will be stops at Veteran tributes, put on by local veterans' organizations. The Respect shown along the way will have you tearing up.

Till the mission continues, God Bless Our Vets & God Bless the USA Rick
